For Immediate Release

CALGARY — Media are invited to join students from Crescent Heights High School as they showcase their contributions to their local and global communities at a We Day-inspired school event on March 20. This WE-ACT assembly is meant to encourage students to take action and make a difference in their everyday lives.

The student council at the school has organized an assembly that includes musical and dance performances, inspirational presentations from students, remarks from Calgary Stampeder Alvin Bowen, a video presentation from Free the Children and more. The students who are sharing their stories include a student who has battled cancer and a student entrepreneur.
