October is LD Awareness Month...

Help increase awareness of learning disabilities. Pass these facts on!

Most colleges and universities in Canada have support for students with learning disabilities.

Invitation Information:

Resiliency is the ability to rebound from life's challenges. Of course, we all need to be resilient at different times. For students with learning disabilities, school can present significant challenges for some of these students. Developing and building resiliency skills empower students with learning disabilities to manage the challenges they face at school and sometimes in their social life.

Debra Caso-Rohland, Learning Disabilities Specialist, will present a number of strategies to help parents reinforce their children's strengths, encourage them to advocate for themselves, and develop the belief that they have what it takes to succeed.
